

AGRICULTURAL AND EXTENSION EDUCATION

Dear Agriculture Teachers and Students:

We hope you will attend the 2020 West Virginia Career Development Events to be held at West Virginia University, Jackson's Mill and Fairmont State University. Please be advised of important information regarding CDE Procedures and Rules.

All events will be registered and scored with the Judgingcard.com system. There will be no provision for late registrations. All scantron data will be scanned and submitted online. No changes can be made to team and student numbers, therefore incorrect team and student numbers will result in the student being disqualified from the event. It will be valuable to you and your students to visit the AGEE homepage to access the CDE Rules and Regulations which includes information about scantron sheets and other contest material. You can access the CDE Homepage at <https://aged.wvu.edu>.

The Rules and Regulations will be considered the OFFICIAL source of information for the contest. Students must possess two #2 pencils and a firm substance on which to write. They should also have something to protect their scantron sheets from the weather.

- All chaperones attending the 2020 Career Development Events must be formally approved by their local Boards of Education
- The basic entry fee cost per team is $10.00 (make checks payable to WVU-CDE Fund). An additional fee will be assessed for the Floriculture, Meats and Poultry contests.
- Once a contest has started, there will be no communication among contestants until all score cards have been turned in and the contest has been completed. If a contestant is observed talking at any time he/she has a scantron in hand, the group leader will record the student's name, school and contestant number and give it to the contest coordinator and/or the results tabulator. This individual will be disqualified from the contest.

If you have specific questions about a contest, please contact the Contest Coordinator. Contact information for Contest Coordinators can be found in the WV Ag. Teachers Directory.

Sincerely,
